Abstract

In this brief, we discuss the living Dào in the context of current earth changes.

The Regency

The title Blossom of Radiance was bestowed upon our regency by the peerage known as Silver River House.[1] Our formal literature is Daoist in provenance.[2] We serve aboard the sailing vessel Lady Snail Goddess, commissioned in Hong Kong in 1965 to represent the interests of earth on behalf of its unnamed potential.[3] Thus, our mandate is to affirm the primordial substrate of being.[4] The historical

[1] 銀河 • (Yínhé) or Milky Way Galaxy; 華暉 (Huáhuī) Secret of the Shining Toad, p. 270, Taylor, et al., 2011. The earliest identifiable usage in non-telepathic characters is generally attributed to Han rhapsodic literature, where 華暉 describes: the radiant splendor of imperial virtue, the blossoming brilliance of spring, the luminous beauty of the feminine and the radiant immortals.

[2] 道家 • (Dào) the Way, the generative process, the underlying order of reality; (jiā) family, lineage, school, or community of thought.

[3] 女娲 • (Nüwa) or Lady Snail Goddess, creator of modern form of human embodiment. Peeress of (后土 • (Hòutǔ) Sovereign Earth or Empress Earth. From the House of 無極母 (Wújí Mǔ) Infinite Mother or 瑤池金母 (Yáochí Jīnmǔ) Golden Mother of the Jade Pond, archetype of divine feminine. Temporal reign during 龙山文化 (Lóngshān wénhuà) or establishment of this entitlement is sovereign. Authority is declared by the mothers of creation, who can be traced back through the Shang-dynasty oracle bone inscriptions to Dragon Mountain Culture, and before that, Goddess culture at Ox-River Ridge. No written language appears within this root culture because it was purely telepathic and unbound by named convention. [5]

Dragon Mountain culture ca. 2800 BCE. Instantiates in temporal succession to 牛河梁女神 (Niú hé liáng nǚ shén) or "Ox River Ridge Female Deity" – prior to naming, this telepathic instantiation of the Goddess is simply recognized as a fluid, ever-changing facet of creative potential who defies containment in any personality structure or label.

[4] 無 • (Wú) the unconditioned, the origin, the pre-phenomenal state.

[5] With regard to telepathic channeling, § 06.05.003 (209) establishes prior precedent: the statute says "The eldest and specialists sometimes encounter each other. They can talk to each other too. 方士 •(fāngshì) "master of methods," "technical specialist," "esoteric practitioner," often associated with early Daoist arts. 大意識 (dà yìshí) "first consciousness among many" or simply 大 "eldest" - top tier of higher self, closest to Absolute Reality of Source. The formal literature speaks of this coherent relationship between the personality structure and higher self as "Jade Dragon Companions." This principle was elevated by the telepathic goddess culture of 紅山(Hóngshān) or Red Mountain, the ceremonial heart of which is 牛河梁 (Niuheliang) or Ox-River Ridge (ca. 4700 – 2900 BCE). Jade Dragon arts are directly and definitively associated with the Hongshan goddess culture. Not just loosely, not just symbolically – it is one of the signature artifacts of the culture, and it emerges specifically from Hongshan ritual contexts, including Niuheliang. This is structurally ancestral to (女娲) Nüwa or Lady Snail Goddess taking form at the beginning of 龙山文化(Lóngshān wénhuà) or Dragon Mountain culture ca. 2900 – 1700 BCE. She is referred to as creator of modern form of human embodiment; (后土) Houtu or Earth Sovereign aka. "Gaia", Xiwangmu (西王母) — Western Mother or Infinite Mother personification of superposition or unseen infinite potential. Nüwa is distinct from Southern Snail Mother lineages (螺祖) 螺祖 (Luózǔ) literally means "Snail Ancestress." Like Nüwa, she is a primordial mother, a culture-founder, and often the first woman or first ancestress of a clan or people. Her descendants, the 螺氏 (Luó shì) or 螺人 (Snail People), are the lineages who claim her as their origin. These lineages appear in: Zhuang traditions, Bouyei traditions, Dong (Kam) traditions, Shui traditions, Li (Hlai) traditions, Some southern Han folk strata, Northern Vietnamese upland groups. They form a southern, water-linked, matrilineal cosmology parallel to but purely syncretic with the northern Nüwa complex.

In this report, we evaluate the immediate situation by reviewing two case studies demonstrating how the entourage of the peeress is beginning to emerge. We demonstrate energetic presence and telepathic exchange to be self-evident in a series of channeled transmissions. Each verified case serves as evidence indicating a profound transformation in the embodied consciousness of society and the individual. We see a nonlinear trend in this respect over the next five years. In essence, we are documenting a shift towards balance and harmony. This is not dependent on religious belief or metaphysical principles – it is an emergent phenomenon that can be observed and measured.

Case Study 1: Specialist Tucker

Specialist Anne Tucker is a former corporate executive. In 2020, she began appearing publically to demonstrate an emergent capacity called "trance-channeling." We refer to Anne as a "specialist" because the agency of her transmissions is self-evident. Specialist Tucker consistently conveys direct transmissions on behalf of the entourage associated with her higher-self. Her offerings are well-received worldwide.

From 2020 – 2024, specialist Tucker decided upon a simple definition of "angels" to identify the source of her transmissions. In the formal literature of the peerage, this would be equivalent to an emissary of higher order consciousness – an envoy, or divine messenger 使者 (shǐzhě). Importantly, specialist Tucker's angels present themselves as entirely areligious – completely devoid from any Western institutional context or liturgical tradition. Instead, their messages are uniformly coherent with the substrate of Absolute Reality upon which the core of traditional Daoist thinking 道家思維(dàojiā sīwéi) is situated. This was the first indicator that the transmissions conveyed by specialist Tucker can in fact be classified as legitimate artifacts of Silver River House that pertain explicitly to the earth peeress or 后土 (Houtu).

In 2025, specialist Tucker introduced another perspective of higher order consciousness who emerged from within her entourage. A female perspective whom she refers to simply as a "mother of creation." Specialist Tucker publically states that this peeress presents herself as the "creator of all human souls" embodied on earth. According our formal literature, this Creatress would belong to the order of the female perfected beings or 女真之列 (nǚzhēn zhī liè)." Specifically, specialist Tucker's claim identifies a nameless female perfected with attributes displayed by Lady Snail Goddess or 女娲 (Nüwa). We say "nameless" because prior to the introduction of dragon bone oracle script in the Shang, the goddess-culture associated with Ox River Ridge was telepathic, meaning they did not bind static ideas and concepts contrived by a personality structure to the limitless expanse of creative potential or 無 (wú).

In 2025 we published a numerological exegesis of specialist Tucker's original transmissions – a calendrical affirmation of messages from her original angelic envoys or 使者 (shǐzhě). The title of the publication is Behind Beehive Island with Lady Snail Goddess. In short, the text invokes an ancient angelic cryptogram known as Original Gossip to verify divine seals and higher order synchronicities between legitimate artifacts of Silver River House and specialist Tucker's channelings.

We understand the creative feminine energy channeled by specialist Tucker to transmit from the same energetic lineage of higher order consciousness through which Dragon Mountain culture and Blossom of Radiance descended and took temporal form ca. 2800 BCE. Direct descendants of this self-perfected goddess-culture were later publically administered to by Golden Mother of the Jade Pond ca. 1600 BCE. The particular Creatress channeled by specialist Tucker, by whatever name, always expresses herself in relation to the earth peeress in terms of Absolute Reality and Unity Consciousness. For example, under the image of descending "Down Below" to embody as a human, the ancient angelic or 使者 (shǐzhě) cryptogram Original Gossip says

Obey the One; the laws are in harmony with the feminine

Obey this – hold it close again and again

The reason must be traced to its very source.

In evidence of coherence, the self-perfected goddess entourage who claims to be a progenitor of human souls who speaks through specialist Tucker, stated the following about the unified law of the divine feminine in a live channeling on 3.13.2026

We are speaking again on topics that are related to your concern, things you are worried about, where I can reassure you, where I can give you a greater feeling of safety and safekeeping.

There is no moment in your truth where you are unsafe.

There is no moment where you can be pulled apart from the core stream of light that becomes you.

For you are at one with yourself.

You are in a oneness that cannot be divided.

There is the soul that is you that has no counterpart that has no second coming, that has no other significance rising somewhere else.

You are an individuation alone and as that unified source you are unified in the same way that God is.

You are a one soul spirit.

And what this makes from within you is a column – a construction of illumination that cannot be divided.

It is a stream, a current, a flow that has as its origination point the center of all that is.

And it comes through you again and again in each moment, in each second and cannot be divided.

It is not divisible.

It is one and you are in this oneness at all times.

According the formal literature, the order through which this nameless self-perfected numina instantiates is part of a galactic peerage localized under the historical name Silver River or 銀河 Yínhé. That is why the entourage continues their 3.13.2026 transmission by incorporating riverine symbolism

And thus, as you are thinking about what happens in this life, to the current to the stream that you are, it is merely a flow like a river that you are moving through.

It is a passageway, a doorway.

It is a temporary obstruction.

But like a river, you will always find your passage around, beneath, or over whatever falls before you.

In the oneness of your individuated expression, there are many permutations of what you can become.

You are not limited.

SRH 道

There is not one thing that you can do.

There are many things for the choosing.

You are all that you've ever been.

And you are yet becoming more things.

There are new streams within you that emerge from the inside out.

There is no external justification that enables you to become.

You simply are.

You are becoming from within.

And what emerges from you comes from that internal state of presence.

Thus, should you want something, should you wish for something, you merely need to allow it to rise up from within you, there are many things you have not yet experienced, many new ways of becoming, new truths you have not yet explored.

Is every path available to you with circumspection?

I would say yes.

For you are an individuated dialogue with source itself.

And you have come to become many things.

And you have sheltered yourself in specific ways and guided yourself along certain pathways which have created a sense of who you are.

A core stream of light that is filtered into specific colors, if you will.

And those colors have taken shape.

And those shapes have reinforced themselves.

Thus today, as you stand, as you are, as you breathe, you are becoming something that you think about yourself.

SRH 道

You are becoming what you are into a haven of existence, which is what we will call the body, which has taken on an expression that reflects what you are.

And these categories within which you have found yourselves are defined from within.

But they have become permeated throughout your existence.

For they have come upon themselves and upon themselves again and again.

You have taken many many forms through many many lifetimes.

But in each of those there are particular elements of who you are that you have carried with you for you to create an increasingly individuated experience of who you are.

Thus the becoming that you are today is an expression that has been carefully formulated from within.

And it is not all things.

It is specific things.

It is what you have specified, what you have valued, what you have triumphed over, and what you have desired to become.

Thus, can you become anything?

Yes, within reason.

What will not violate the truths which you've already generated.

What will work in accordance with the truth which you have cultivated.

Thus, you have created and taken certain pathways which have pointed you in certain directions.

In other words, if you are currently not on the path of doing certain professions, it is difficult later in life to begin choosing those professions.

It is something that you can perhaps aspire to, that you can work on, that you can develop, but certain pathways and certain doorways close as you move through a lifetime.

And this is all right.

You become something new.

You become something else.

And that something else is individuated further and further.

However, from the place that you are standing, the doorways that open before you are truly infinite.

The importance of this transmission with regard to the shift that is now unfolding worldwide cannot be understated. This information cannot be categorized as new age metaphysics. Rather, it is substantively atemporal, in addition to mirroring some of the oldest literature on earth regarding the limitless nature of expansive consciousness. The 3.13.2026 transmission concludes as follows

There are many passageways that you have not even yet considered.

And there are limitations which are not your truth, but have been left behind by other experiences.

And I would encourage yourselves as you are whispering forward what is your tomorrow to allow your breath to incorporate something more beautiful than you have been asking for.

To extend yourself an olive branch back to your current self and offer something far more enlightening, a greater breeze of your own becoming.

For there are ways of living that you have not yet explored that would be of benefit.

And what is in your way?

What is the persistent obligation, the callous wound, the reluctance that is generated by fear?

I would say when you come to embrace the truth of what you are as a stream of unified presence that cannot be divided from itself, there is nothing and no one that can interrupt you, that can stop you, only self.

For you are one and one cannot be divided.

There is nothing to fear in this life.

What obligations, what truths you stumble upon, what unforgiving moments you swim within, all of these are temporary.

And within the pause of a breath, you can move through them.

And I would suggest for the self that to embrace the creative divine treasure within your heart, the power to generate your own reality.

You simply need to choose to focus upon the thought and the next thought of your own becoming to embrace what can be your new reality.

What is adjacent to where you are that would be an improvement?

What would catapult you into a finer dialogue with reality?

These choices are available to you.

Embrace them.

There's nothing to fear.

The world, yes, is chaotic and this is by design and is…is divinely inspired.

For the pathway forward must move through what obstacles are before it.

But it is temporary.

It is a passageway and you will move through it.

Therefore, I say choose a passage through this chaos that is of benefit to you.

Choose a pathway which is graceful, which is easy and triumphant, which embraces the whole of you, which respects the illuminative power that you are generating, and which embraces the life that forms around you.

And this is all.

And in so doing, fear dissolves.

Have this understanding that you are one and one is divisible by itself. [6]

[6] Transmission released to public by specialist Tucker on 3.13.2026.

The transmission begins by establishing the law of One as paramount and concludes by affirming unity-consciousness as the essential truth of the self.

Sea-Changes: 2026 - 2030

There is an opportunity for many to shift into the energy of unity-consciousness by 2030. We refer to an embodiment of higher self who operates at a completely different altitude. In the formal literature, Silver River Book of Changes says

Evil accompanies rebellious human beings – there is no advantage.

The sovereign offspring are loyal but the eldest are gone.

Superficiality has returned.

Greatness is when superficiality departs and the eldest return.

It is good to pass through easily.[7]

Humanity has entered into a new cycle defined by the return of eldest, which is the first consciousness among many. This establishes an opportunity for the reclamation of energetic sovereignty within the native jurisdiction of higher consciousness. The current system is failing because it is designed to exploit asymmetries that distort reciprocity. Conversely, we advocate the release of rules that codify fear and separation. This initial catalyst doesn't require full equality; it only requires enough symmetry that society and the individual do not feel structurally exposed, delegitimized, or disadvantaged by false authority. How might this release of fear and separation come about? What follows is a salient case study of a channel who addresses this question.

Case Study 2: Specialist Selig

Paul Selig is a former member of academia. Paul began offering channeled material from "the guides" in the late 2000s. We refer to Paul as a specialist because the agency of his timely transmissions is widely renowned. Specialist Selig's guides consistently offer counsel that is pragmatic and well-advised.

In early 2026, Specialist Selig's entourage stated that the old posture of peer-to-peer inequity must be relaxed now that the status quo is beginning to collapse. His guides offer the following perspective as a prerequisite for dissolving fear and separation, so that society and the individual can begin to reclaim the self in its native jurisdiction of unity-consciousness.

[7] Silver River Book of Changes, p. xix, Taylor, et al., 2015

It is actually accountability to your neighbor that you must have in order for all to be in order.

For all to be free and all to be healthy.

And for all to be valued and for all to know themselves in value.

As long as one is cast out, one human being, one that appears to be the dark one, or so different from you that you cannot abide her at your table, you will be challenged.

Indeed, you will be.

Because you like separation.

You like your houses and their locks.

You like your country clubs and their memberships.

You like your segregation and the rulebooks you have used to deny your neighbor.

To deny his or her right to be.

That is going to be out the window now – and not in the kindest way.

When you realize your participation in this, your sense of self and your obligation to your fellows will shatter some things that you chose, that you have chosen to ignore.

"It doesn't matter what the neighbors do, I have my own problems."

"It does not matter what their children do, I have my own to worry about."

"It does not matter if they have food, as long as I have what I require."

These ideas are leaving because they cannot stay – they cannot be lifted.

Nor can they be lied about to the higher level of tone.

The higher level of tone that humanity is now aligning to.

You must see your agreement – you have great depictions of greed right now in the world.

But better that some have that some don't – better that it's not you – better that it's not you begging in the street.

And the one with the most, perhaps you should say something – perhaps she should share something.

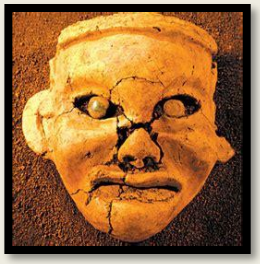
But as long as I am okay, it doesn't matter.

This realization – you cannot continue as this.

These two principles – releasing the old rulebook based on fear and separation and receiving the novel potential on offer in the new cycle, are mutually interdependent. You cannot enact one without the support of the other. And you cannot turn a blind eye to war and greed while hoping to elevate your energetic perspective.

"Abandon the War Chariot"

The formal literature of Silver River House speaks to the direct spiritual descendents of the shining ones formerly embodied within Red Mountain culture at Ox River Ridge ritual complex. Original Gossip cites the example set by the mothers of creation who elevated human consciousness at that site.



Their footprints reflect spirit-brilliance
Abandon the war chariot and go on foot too
Righteousness is not found in those who take advantage [8]

Image on left: Ox River Ridge Female Deity; image on the right Golden Mother of Jade Pond. Red Mountain (Hongshan): Named for the red rocks of Chifeng, Inner Mongolia, this culture flourished from 4700–2900 BCE and is renowned for its jade artifacts, dragon motifs, and ritual architecture. Goddess Temple at Niuheliang: A monumental ceremonial site with altars, tombs, and painted female statues. Female-centered spiritual authority, ancestral and cosmological in nature. The goddess figures are often interpreted as earth-mother archetypes, mediating between heaven and earth. The goddess culture of Hongshan is often seen as a precursor to later Daoist and folk traditions, including the Queen Mother of the West (Golden Mother).
We interpret the primordial feminine in Hongshan to symbolize earth memory, cosmic repair, and ancestral legitimacy. Specifically, the Ox River Ridge goddess figures of Red Mountain culture represent menstrual potency, earthly fertility, and primordial continuity. The numerical seal of this blossom of radiance at the transfer into form (in Dragon Mountain culture, 2852 – 2737 BCE) is 10752 x 219 = 2354688; (2 + 3 + 5 + 4 + 6 + 8 + 8) = (2 + 8 + 5 + 2) + (2 + 7 + 3 + 7). 107.52 solar diameters between centers of sun and earth [mean AU]; line 219 centered under the image titled Heaven in Dragon Horse Codes of Great Brightness says "Turn back here to restore the original state of the Dao. The way of heaven is to change and convert. Here amidst evil, be without fault."
